

I am looking forward to FATHER'S DAY with a renewed passion for the roles of my husband, father, father-in-law and heavenly Father. My husband has been a very engaged father to our children and is their biggest fan and prayer warrior. My father has been my biggest supporter of my family and example of what it means to live out "in sickness and in health" with his bride and my mother for 62 years now. His outgoing personality and desire to enjoy each day to the fullest are other attributes of my father. My father-in-law was the same in his commitment to his bride of 67 years before her passing. His love and generosity toward his family and his work ethic keep him putterin' around the house with projects and involved in the lives of his children and grandchildren. My heavenly Father has gifted me life here and beyond. He has gifted me the Holy Spirit to guide and comfort me. He awaits for me throughout each day to reach out to Him for sweet moments of connection and acknowledgement of His love, His presence, His will, His final authority over evil, and His promise of Heaven for those who choose the truth of John 3:16. May I never take any of these relationships for granted, and may I celebrate each one, each day, with renewed passion for their roles and influence in my life.

Happy Father's Day, every day, to each of you. With love and admiration,

Christine
