Stop Lights and Commercials

What do stop lights and commercials have to do with anything? Stop lights and commercials seem like a good time to get some "little things" done. Stay with me.

Through the years, I have learned so much from my senior friends about the importance of the little things. I read recently about the 1% increase and thought how it applies to what I am learning, and how much can be incorporated at those stop lights and commercials that we all find ourselves experiencing. So here are 5 things we can benefit from either at stop lights, commercials, or both!

Kegal exercises—helps with incontinence!

Spirometer breathing or deep breathing—strengthens lungs, helps prevent pneumonia, decreases stress

Prayer—remember those whom you said you would be praying for or pray for those in the car beside you

Hydrate—sip on some water to stay hydrated.

Posture Check—stomach muscles in and shoulders back for a stretch

Let me know of others you think of! Christine

Ruby's Writings

FOR YOU

I want you to know that I care for you; there is warm affection in my heart. My love reaches out wherever you are and spans the miles that keep us apart.

I think about you and how you are; there are feelings too deep to express. I know you must live with many problems. What can I do but feel so helpless? The prayer of a righteous man is powerful and effective."

James 5:16

I cannot take your place with it's troubles, but there is a way I can help you through. I will have you in my thoughts often and I will always be praying for you.

Caregiver's Corner

Showing LOVE to my loved one includes showing LOVE for myself.

Caring for a family member demonstrates LOVE and can be a very rewarding. Yet worry, inadequate resources, and continuous care demands can make caregiving enormously stressful. Before a caregiver is aware, many have risked their own health with inadequate diet, exercise, and sleep. To stay sharp and healthy, show LOVE to yourself with a health check-up, overnight help if your loved one keeps you up, and daily respite for at least 2 hours. Daily respite can come from family members, church friends, neighbors, or hiring a trusted person who will engage your loved one in conversation and appropriate activities while you are gone. There's no easy solution, but you can't navigate this journey alone. Call Christine for more ideas and to help you coordinate care so you can receive what you need to be a better caregiver: (316) 209-9028

AROUND TOWN & BEYOND

Koinonia Senior Care strives to be a place of community resources for many of our senior's needs. Our resources have developed from the questions and calls of caregivers and seniors alike. Our RESOURCES tab on our website is filled with various topics, one being the "Resource Links" page, full of links to local, state, and national websites for things like transportation, relocation services, government financial information, legal matters, medical equipment, disease education, spiritual support, and caregiver needs.

Koinonia Senior Care appreciates the efforts of many organizations reaching out to the needs or our senior community, so what better way to get the word out than to share with our readers some of those services. This month we highlight a few of those throughout our newsletter. Be sure and let Christine know of others senior-centered organizations and events we should consider highlighting in our newsletter!

Bott Radio Network is one of those we have found helpful for the spiritual encouragement of many of our readers. Locally, you can find their station on FM 94.3.

LOVE is spelled F-A-M-I-L-Y

At Koinonia Senior Care (KSC) we believe the family is the first source of assistance. Studies and experience have highlighted the physical toll caregiving puts on the primary caregiver. They need others to walk through this season of life with them. KSC serves alongside the family and church to provide encouragement, respite, and resources. We also assist those who have uninvolved or long-distance families by providing 2-4 hr. companionship they can trust and turn to for their nonmedical CARE needs.
